

In the Supreme Court of the State of Alaska

Allison Leigh,

Appellant,

v.

Alaska Children's Service and Republic Indemnity Company of America,

Appellees.

Supreme Court No. S-17247

Order

Date of Order: 6/28/19

AWCAC Appeal No. 18-014

On 6/13/19, Petitioner Allison Leigh filed a motion to supplement the appellate record with "transcripts of the proceedings that have already taken place so that injunctive relief can be granted." On 6/17/19, the petitioner lodged transcripts of nine proceedings of the Alaska Worker's Compensation Board, ranging from 7/18/17 to 5/8/19. On 6/20/19, Respondents filed a partial opposition to the petitioner's motion.

By order dated 12/4/18, this court granted review of two legal questions involving the authority of the Alaska Workers' Compensation Board to require employees to sign releases for mental health records. Petitioner does not explain how the transcripts are relevant to these two legal questions and this court does not grant injunctive relief. However, giving deference to the petitioner's status as an unrepresented litigant,

IT IS ORDERED:

The petitioner's motion is GRANTED IN PART and DENIED IN PART. The parties may cite to transcripts of proceedings that occurred before 9/20/18, the date of the order under review. The petitioner is again cautioned, however, that the court has granted review of only those two legal issues identified in the 12/4/18 order; the parties' briefing should be confined to addressing those issues and not other or more recent disputes.
